$1,750,000 TO BUILD CHURCH

DR. EARLE WILFLEY, BROTHER OF LOCAL MAN, TO BE PASTOR.

NATIONAL CATHEDRAL

Christian Churches of United States Will Raise Money for Fine Structure In Washington, D. C.

Dr. Earle Wilfley, pastor of the Vermont Avenue Christian Church, Washington, D. C., a brother of G. L. Wilfley of this city, will be minister of the new $1,750,000 cathedral which the Christian Churches of the United States are preparing to build as a national city Christian Church.

"To its pastor, Dr. Wilfley, the brotherhood is indebted for the vision of the present undertaking and for the selection of the magnificent site for the enterprise," H. H. Harmon, Indianapolis, Ind., stated in a booklet on the new structure. Mr. Harmon is director of the project.

Dr. Wilfley is a member of the administrative committee.

The new building will be located at the junction of Massachusetts avenue and Fourteenth street, overlooking Thomas Circle, within six squares of the White House. The property acquired at a total cost of $345,000, comprises nearly fifty thousand square feet, with an elevation of from 10 to 12 feet. Other properties on the circle are on the street level.

The National City Church project has been approved by the brotherhood the vote of four international conventions, at Cincinnati in 1919, St. Louis in 1920, Winona Lake in 1921, and Memphis in 1926.

Missouri Leaders Named.

Missouri participation in plans to assemble $1,750,000 for the building of a national church will be in charge of a commission of which Dr. Frank M. Lowe, Jr., pastor of the Christian Church at Mexico, Mo., is to be chairman.

Definite community quotas will not be assigned, according to organization schedules, but surveys will be made throughout the state to determine the amounts to be raised in connection with the church "crusade" which is under the national direction of H. H. Harmon of Indianapolis.

C. C. Garrigues of Kansas City is secretary of the Missouri commissioners, as well as of the Missouri Christian Missionary Society. Other members of the group to have charge of the Missouri campaign are: John H. Wood, Canton; George A. Campbell, St. Louis; F. W. Fleming, Kansas City; A. W. Kokendoffer, Sedalia; R. A. Long, Kansas City; M. Palmer, Clarkson, St. Louis; Orcon E. Scott, St. Louis and Mrs. E. E. Elliott, Kansas City.

"Washington," leaders of the movement point out, "is rapidly becoming the religious center of the nation. The great communions of Protestantism are gradually building their own expression into the architectural beauties of this monumental city on the banks of the Potomac.

Other Denominations Build.

"Mount Vernon Place Methodist Episcopal Church, South, a beautiful building of white marble of classical design, stands as the 'gift of the South to the Nation's capital.'

"The Baptists, North and South, have practically completed a great memorial building at a cost of $500,000.

"The Lutheran memorial church has stood for many years in a strategic down-town location, neighboring the site chosen for our own project.

"On a commanding site on Mt. St. Albans, the Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul, or the Washington Cathedral, as it has come to be known is being erected by the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States. One section, builded in the beautiful English Gothic style, is completed. The entire structure, the cost of which is estimated at ten million dollars, will require many years for completion.

"The Northern Methodists, Christian Scientists and Unitarians have representative buildings; the Presbyterians have recently announced a nation-wide campaign for the raising of funds for the erection of a $2,000,000 cathedral; and the Congregationalists have a committee at work on plans for a like project."

Congressman Charles L. Faust of St. Joseph will be one of the speakers at the Barnard picnic, according to the Barnard Bulletin. Mr. Faust will deliver his address on Saturday afternoon, the third day of the picnic.

Cow Testing Plan Working Out Well

Members of Association Find Where They Stand.—Room for Five More Owners.

R. Poe Crigler, tester for the Nodaway County testing association, reports that cows in this association are producing 2,000 pounds of milk and 60 pounds of butter fat during this month. The members of the association are well "sold" on the testing and think it is profitable, because it shows them what their cows are doing for them.

"There are so many cows in this county of unknown production," Mr. Crigler said. "He have not a full membership and have room for five more."

Mr. Crigler left last night for Princeton, Mo., to visit his parents until July 1, when he will return here.

YET MORE OIL IN NODAWAY?

INSTRUMENT RECORDS SHOWING NEAR RAVENWOOD.

BY A ST. JOSEPH MAN

Cancer-Radio Device Used to Make Location Nine Miles East of Union School.

By a combined cancer testing, radio mechanism, a good showing of oil sand is declared to have been located on land of Ed Wells and William Walker, approximately nine miles east of the Union school house corner, the Ravenwood Gazette states.

The locations were made last Sunday by Dr. H. H. Francis, a cancer specialist, and Alvin Clark of St. Joseph, according to Solon Clark of Maryville, who is a brother of the St. Joseph man.

Four tests were made, three showing strong, at depths of 1,600 and 3,600 feet. Mr. Clark said this morning that a test was made near the rig of the Quitman Oil and Gas Company, and that it gave the same recordings as the E. C. Blood instrument.

The Gazette said that Dr. Francis "first set the instrument at what is known as the Hickory Hill corner and there picked up a current, or whatever you may call it, and made the remark: 'Here is something worth while, but it is off a long ways, with indicator pointing northwest.'

"The party then went one-half mile north and struck the same current, the indicator still pointing to the northwest. They then went west of the Ed Wells' farm house and set the apparatus and again picked up the current, but this time the indicator pointed north.

"They then went on west to the corner north of the Wm. Walker place, but this time the indicator pointed east of north, showing they were west of the central point, and by Dr. Francis' calculations about one-fourth mile from where the indicator had been pointing, or in the pasture north of the road.

"Another set was made at this place and the instrument pointed down, showing they were over the attraction concealed beneath the surface of the earth. This is supposed to be oil sand, and if it is, it is there in abundance as it was first located two and one-fourth miles by road or at least two miles as the bee flies."

Miss Mills to Teach at Georgetown, Tex.

Grant City Student, Graduate of Teachers College, to Instruct in Voice and Theory of Music.

Miss Elizabeth Mills, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. P. O. Mills of Grant City, has accepted a position in the Conservatory of music at Southwestern University at Georgetown, Tex. Southwestern University was formed some time ago from a union of four colleges in the state. It is a standard school with an excellent conservatory. Miss Mills will teach voice and also have class work in theory and public school music.

Miss Mills received her B. S. degree from the State Teachers College here this spring, with a major in public school music and a minor in art. She also was graduated in piano from the Conservatory here this spring, and will present her senior voice recital July 6. On the day she accepted the position in Texas, she received an inquiry from the University of Missouri in reference to a scholarship and a position as teach of music in the University high school.

28 BOYS NOW IN PROJECTS

PORK PRODUCTION MOST POPULAR SUMMER ACTIVITY.

GIVEN SCHOOL CREDIT

Undertakings Also Help on College Funds.—Other Projects Dairy, Poultry and Sheep.

Twenty-eight Maryville high school boys are doing project work in vocational agriculture this summer. Two of this number are dairy projects, three are poultry, one is sheep and twenty-two are pork production projects.

These projects are carried on for high school credit and the boys usually own their projects. Some of them have been able to make enough money to put them through high school and give them a good start at college.

A complete record is kept on both feed and labor and at the close of the projects, the boys are in a position to know just exactly what it costs to produce a pound of pork, a gallon of milk or a dozen eggs. They are also able to cull out the non-profit cow or sow on the farm.

Raymond Rickman is keeping records on thirteen purebred Guernsey cows and they are showing a real profit. Leroy Riekman is keeping records on 400 white leghorn hens.

Robert Hughes, Harold Gingrich, Noble Florea, Leland Thornhill, John Thornhill, Orin Garrett, Wesley Dowden, Wesley Anderson, Harrell Busby, George Epperson, Marvin Lyle, Hans Nielsen, Curtis New, John Dooley, William Alsup, Irvin Jones, Lloyd Jones, and Owen Thompson have sow and litter projects.

Forrest Wells has a poultry project, and William New and Vernon Taylor have two sows and litters each as projects.

George Hepburn has four sows with forty-one pigs in his project. George has entered the state pork production contest and will have to product 1,800 pounds to the litter in order to receive prizes, according to Elmer R. Coats, the boys' instructor and summer advisor. "I think George will do this," Mr. Coats said, "as he produced two Ton litters two years ago as project work."

Orval Davison has 20 ewes and 20 lambs as a project. These are doing well.

"Some of the projects in pork production," the instructor said, "were started on the worm-free plan and are doing splendidly, but several project hogs have been found to be contaminated with round worms. These hogs were treated with 'Oil of Chenopodium' at the rate of 1 teaspoonful mixed with 1 table spoonful of castor oil to every 100 pounds live weight. The method of treatment is as follows:

"Keep hogs off feed one day before treatment, then after giving medicine confine hogs to small pen or shed until after worms have passed, then turn on clean pasture and repeat treatment in 10 to 12 days later, being sure to destroy all worms expelled. This medicine has been found to be quickly effective and is also an excellent mixture for worm infested poultry. Give same amount to twelve mature hens, or to thirty-six chickens from one and one-half to two pound sizes. Many flocks have been found to be worm infested this spring.

"Project work is a new phase of agriculture and the results have been very profitable in every section of Missouri. One of our objectives is to train the boys to be better farmers," Mr. Coats added.

Dr. Roy Canon Buys Residence Property

Mrs. N. B. Castillo has sold her residence property at 316 East Edwards street to Dr. Roy Canon. The consideration was $2,650. Dr. and Mrs. Canon will move to their new home about August 1. The deal was made through Hugh Strong.

Relatives in Maryville received word today of the death of James Dudley Frank, jr., youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Frank, sr., of Pickapoo, Tex. The young man died at 6 o'clock this morning at a hospital in Marlin, Tex., where he had been under treatment for several weks. Death was caused by complications arising from influenza last winter.

The funeral and burial will take place at Livingston, Tex. Surviving the young man, who was 17 years old, are his parents and one brother, Elmore, of New York. Another brother, Ellison, died during the World War while in training at a Texas camp. He was a nephew of W. C. Frank and Mrs. Fred Kurtz of Maryville.

RAINFALL FOR SEASON HEAVY

BUT RECORDS HERE SHOW IT NOT GREATLY EXCESSIVE.

COOLEST AND HOTTEST

Maryville Leads State for Both High and Low Temperatures.—Other Farmers Worse Off.

Although the seasonal rainfall since April 1 has been 46 per cent greater than normal in the state as a whole, it has been only 24 per cent in excess of the average here, according to a tabulation of statistics made this morning by J. R. Brink, official weather observer for Maryville and vicinity.

From April 1 to June 24, this year's total precipitation here has been 11.79 inches, Mr. Brink's records show. For the last thirteen years, the average rainfall in the same period has been 9.53 inches.

In the state as a whole, the weather bureau at Columbia announces that the seasonal rainfall, from April 1 to June 21, is 18.13 inches, 46 per cent more than normal and more than the usual rainfall from May to August, inclusive. Only one season in the past 50 years was wetter than the present one, but several have been nearly as wet. For the same period, April 1 to June 21, there was 17 inches in 1887; 16 inches 1893; 19 inches 1896; 17 inches 1908; and 15 inches 1915.

Temperature Highest Here.

Reports from all parts of Missouri for the week which ended Tuesday, showed Maryville to have had both the highest and the lowest temperatures in the state and the least rainfall in the seven-day period. No other point reported a temperature as high as 90, the maximum here, while Unionville was the only place having a minimum as low as the 44 record here. Maryville's rainfall during the week was only .36 inch, as compared with measurements ranging from .56 to 3.62 inches at other points.

Following the pleasant and satisfactory farming weather of the immediately preceding week, there was a reaction to cloudy, cool, and wet, and generally unfavorable conditions for the farmer, according to the weather bureau's weekly summary of weather and crop conditions in Missouri. There was only one partly workable day in the east section, two in the south, and three in the northwest, and only two seasonably warm days anywhere.

The total rainfall for the week was less than one inch over the northwest section but in all the remainder of the state it was heavy to excessive, being generally 52 per cent more than the normal.

Some Corn Not Planted.

The bulk of corn planting and replanting is finished, although some sections in and adjacent to Marion county and in the extreme southeast report only a little more than half of the crop in the ground. The Southeast will probably plant the 90 day variety. Some fields are getting grassy but most of the corn is fairly clean, and most of it has been worked over once or twice. Early planted is knee-high. Warm, dry, sunny weather is needed.

There has been too much water for the best development of wheat. Reports generally agree that straw and heads and long but the heads are poorly filled, while there is considerable rust and lodging. Harvest is under way as far north as Bates county, and will advance to and north of the Missouri river in another week. Rust is quite prevalent in the oat crop.

SNIPER GOES TO THE CHAIR

OMAHA SLAYER FORFEITS LIFE TO THE STATE.

SHOT DOWN TWO MEN

A Third Victim Seriously Wounded During "Reign of Terror" Lasting a Week.

Lincoln, June 24.—Frank Carter, the Omaha "sniper," today paid with his own life for the death of two men, the near fatal shooting of another, and for holding Omaha under a "reign of terror" for a week in 1925.

The man who terriorized Omaha for several weeks, as he sniped at passers-by, was led to the electric chair in the state prison at 6:13 a. m. Six minutes later he was pronounced dead. Three thousand volts of electricity had passed through his body.

Carter walked smilingly to his death, telling the executioner to "turn on the juice," as he settled himself in the chair. Those were Carter's last words.

Then the "Sniper" smiled, and the wan, somewhat wistful smile was still ed on his lips after his stiffened form had been pronounced dead by physicians.

Nebraska had exacted toll for the murder of Dr. Austin Searles and William McDivitt, whom Carter killed in Omaha in February, 1926. The confessed sniper claimed, in addition to these, many other killings, almost boastfully relating how he had shot men down from ambush.

Claims 43 Murders.

He declared he had committed forty-three murders in his life.

Carter's one obsession was publicity. He was happy, it seems, only when he had a crowd of reporters around him.

The sniper's last request, that he be allowed to be put to death without a blindfold over his eyes, was denied.

Known victims of Carter's blazing .22 caliber pistol were McDivitt, 35, and Dr. Searles, who were killed, and Ross Johnson, 28, seriously wounded.

McDevitt, a milkman, was shot down near First Methodist church Sunday evening, Feb. 14.

Monday afternoon a bullet was fired into the home of Mrs. Margaret Davis, nearby, and Tuesday evening a missile of the same caliber was fired into the Thompson drug store, two blocks away.

Terror gripped the entire city when it was realized an assassin was at large and might strike again at any moment, anywhere. Doors and windows were bolted as Omaha prepared to live behind curtains.

Citizens Stay Indoors.

A death pall seemed to envelop the invaded neighborhood, and few persons ventured out of doors after dark.

The "Sniper" struck next in the downtown district, and Thursday morning Dr. Searles, specialist in social diseases, was found dead in his office with a telltale .22 bullet through his brain.

Johnson, a railroad detective, was the next victim. He was shot down as he was walking through the railroad yards in Council Bluffs Friday evening.

Carter was captured near Bartlett, Ia., at noon the following Monday by some section hands who recognized him from descriptions furnished the newspapers by Johnson.

Arrested, he confessed the crimes and talked readily about them. Robbery was his motive, he said, and he shot his victims when they refused to "put 'em up," he told police.

Pleading not guilty to first degree murder charges, Carter was convicted and senteneed to death March 21, after a week's trial largely taken up with conflicting testimony of alienists.

John Baldwin, public defender, based Carter's defense on insanity, and declared he was a victim of "urges;" morally and mentally incompetent, and suffering from a "split personality" as the result of paresis.

Welcomes the Chair.

Carter took pride in his answers to cross examination, and seemed particularly worried his answers might seem "ignorant."

He told the trial judge he was more sane than his attorneys, and that he believed he should be senteneed to the electric chair.

"I am glad they don't hang in this state," he said, "because I am anxious to see how it feels to be electrocuted."

Several subsequent efforts to obtain a commutation of sentence to life were attempted by Carter's attorneys, but without result.

Young Negro Slayer Pays Death Penalty

Lonnie Dixon, Little Rock, Ark., Executed On 19th Birthday.—Watermelons His Last Request.

Little Rock, Ark., June 24.—Going to his death on his eighteenth birthday, Lonnie Dixon, negro, paid today with his life for the confessed assault and murder of 11-year-old Floella McDonald, a white girl, here last April 12.

Dixon was executed by the state of Arkansas shortly after 5 a. m. today.

The McDonald's girl's body was found in the belfry of a local church, where the negro had dragged it after beating the child to death in the basement of the church.

Relatives of the McDonald girl were on hand for the execution. Three brothers were grouped in the rear of the room, one climbing to the shoulders of a spectator to get a better view of the proceedings.

Dixon's last request last night was for a large quantity of watermelons. Melons were taken to his cell and he devoted his entire last evening to eating them.

5-5-3 NAVAL RATIO BASED ON WASHINGTON CONFERENCE.

PRINCIPLE ACCEPTED

American Delegation at Geneva Is Prepared to Quote Balfour and Kato in 1921.

Geneva, June 24.—After their ineffectual exchange of verbal bombardments, the chief delegates to the naval armament conference got seriously to work today.

The "big three"—Hugh Gibson, United States; W. E. Bridgeman, Great Britain; and Admiral Saito, Japan—met early. They appointed Bridgeman as chairman of their committee of three.

Washington, June 24.—If a deadlock occurs at the Geneva Naval Limitation Conference over the American plan for a 5-5-3 ratio for American, British and Japanese auxiliary ships, the United States is prepared to appeal to the stand taken by the other two governments at the Washington arms conference.

At the second plenary session of the Washington conference in November, 1921, Lord Balfour, chief British delegate, and Baron Kato, head of the Tokyo delegation, committed their governments in principal to application of the 5-5-3 ration to auxiliary craft.

The American delegation at Geneva is prepared if necessary to quote the words of Balfour and Kato as answer to any British or Japan opposition now to a principle accepted by vote in 1921.

No fundamental change has occurred since 1921, either in the international relations between the three countries or in naval technique, to justify a reversal of policy by London or Toyko, according to the American view.

Good-Will Flight to Be Made July 2; Russian Aviatrix Establishes Altitude Record for Women.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., June 24.—Continued unfavorable weather reports reached Com. Richard Byrd this afternoon and prospects for a start to Paris of the Fokker monoplane America seemed negligible.

The weather bureau said Fog and strong cross winds existed over Newfoundland and out to sea and that a day must elapse before a change could be hoped for.

Byrd was disappointed at the reports: "If I was alone, I might start. But I have the responsibility of three men and also the benefit of aviation to consider," he said.

"You may depend upon it that the very first time the weather man says 'go,' we'll go."

Washington, June 24.—Col. Charles Lindbergh will make a good-will flight to Ottawa, Can., July 2 to take part in the diamond jubilee of the Canadian government, Secretary of State Kellogg today announced.

THE ONLY DAILY PAPER IN NODAWAY COUNTY

THE CHANGING NEWSPAPER.

One does not exactly expect Mr. H. L. Mencken of the American Mercury to be found sobbing for the good old times. Nevertheless he laments the passing of yellow journalism.

"Where are the old devastating columns of purloined letters? Where are the slashing cartoons by Davenport? Where are the editorial philippics in black, black type? They are gone—and they are missed. The American daily press, with Hearst leading it in a devil's dance, was loud, vulgar, inordinate, and preposterous—but it was not slimy and it was not dull. Today it is both.

"Everywhere the syndicate feature crowds the news harder and harder, and everywhere editorial-writing becomes more and more indistinguishable from pants-pressing. Hearst was the last American journalist who dominated his medium. His successors are simply well oiled mechanisms. There is little more difference between one and another than there is between two Uneeda biscuits."

This "ironing out" Mencken feels sure, is an evil.

"It makes for the economical operation of newspapers but it works against the development of the concrete journalist. He works anonymously, like a clerk in a bank, and when, by some whim of his master, he is thrown out, he sinks into anonymous nothingness."

All of this, and more, may be true. Yet we view not with alarm. The syndicate feature does crowd the local news. Editorial writing is somewhat more standardized than 20 years ago. But both are clearer and more vivid.

The newspaper, along with the public, is undergoing a period of bewildering transition. It is not strange that there should be editors marking time, along with statesmen and philosophers, carrying on from day to day as best they can, with no great genius, perhaps, but nevertheless carrying on, and keeping calm while seeking a clear path through the wilderness.

After all, the true function of a newspaper is to report action in its news columns and to interpret news in terms of life on the editorial page. If papers are sometimes dull and slimy, perhaps at those times life turns a dull and slimy face for them to reflect.

If Mr. Mencken were as calm and as foresighted as the average editor, he might be able to dry his tears and see that there's life in the old shoot yet.

Somebody ought to start a collection of hairpins and hatpins before they disappear utterly from the earth.

About $300,000,000 in gold has been taken out of the Black Hills region in the vicinity of the President's summer home. And now they say there's political gold in "them hills."

And now they are finding fault with Coolidge because he doesn't fish to suit them. Fishing is a very personal thing and, if a man prefers to use worms in the old fashioned way, he should be allowed that privilege. What does a man fish for anyway except to satisfy his own pleasure? It's a terrible thing to be president of the United States and not allowed to even fish in your own way.

Don't buy any stock in flying companies yet. There will be a lot of such companies promoted but just because one or two experts have succeeded in getting across the Atlantic without being drowned is no reason flying will pay as a freight or passenger carrying business. Commercial routes may pay sometime but it is a long way in the future. At present they can only exist by government subsidy.

Says Sunday Golfer Can't Drive Straight

Edinburgh, June 24.—Golfers who find they are developing a tendency to slice or pull, will—if they play on Sundays—be able to blame their defects on their religious beliefs.

For Dr. White of Glasgow, speaking at the Church of Scotland Assembly here recently, said: "None but the practical atheist who has forgot quite all obligations to the Church can play 18 holes of golf on Sunday after Sunday and drive straight.

"Fifty years ago one reason for not going to church was the question of clothes. That is not a valid reason today, although it is still the excuse of some. It ought never to be hard for the poorest to enter the most fashionable and select churches. Indeed, it should not be possible for any church to be dubbed fashionable or select."

"I Have Fear That America Is Drifting," Writes J. W. Dyson, of Soochow University, to Friends Here

"I have the fear that America is drifting—and the recent events in Nicaragua, China and the evasions in the Philippines make one wonder just how much imperialism is in our system, too. We are wasting golden opportunities, and the historians of fifty years hence will wonder at our blindness and dullness."

This is what J. W. Dyson, a teacher in Soochow University, Soochow, China, wrote recently to Henry A. Foster, instructor of history in the State Teachers College, and Mrs. Foster. Mr. and Mrs. Dyson visited with Mr. and Mrs. Foster in Maryville last summer while the Dysons were in this country on a furlough from their work, which is under the auspices of the M. E. Church, South.

Mrs. Dyson formerly was Miss Myrtle Sheldon of this city.

They are now temporarily located at Shanghai, China, having evacuated Soochow at the time of the trouble with the Chinese Nationalist forces.

Mr. Dyson was selected to make the official report from Soochow University to the Educational Association, for circulation among the other schools in East China. He enclosed a copy of it in his letter to the Fosters. It gives a vivid picture of the events and the confusion at the time of the evacuation of that territory. He tells about the first rumors of the nationalist movement coming to the University. The American teachers expressed their sympathies with the Chinese. Then, on Saturday, March 26, the report states:

"During the course of these three hours on Saturday evening (7:30 to 10:30) the whole foreign community, near the university, seemed to have been overtaken by a succession of the wildest rumors, one of the most startling being the attempt to burn out the foreigners there. Each rumor was trailed down, and soon exposed, but not without having caused much anxiety during the hours indicated. Several families' servants, who could not be reassured by explanation of the rumors, left the campus for the night, in order not to be involved in any surprise attack that might be made on the foreigners. All the while, various groups were preparing to leave, and there was constant running to and fro, connected with the meetings, the radio reports, the rumors, and the assembling of boats and baggage."

Several boats left at that time but the remaining American teachers stayed until Wednesday, March 30. The very best good-will existed between American teachers and the student body at the Soochow University and everyone was anxious that conditions be stabilized as soon as possible, Mr. Dyson said.

He expressed an earnest desire that America be patient and sympathetic with China in its time of trouble. "If America," he argued, "would only take a chance on the essential friendship which China feels for her, and risk something on conserving the good-will of China, it would help more than all the special privilege you can possibly legislate." Again, he said, "At a time like this the Chinese need much sympathy and patience. They are working out their destinies, and if the powers assumed a friendly attitude, it would be much better than the critical irritating, scornful, attitude so manifest everywhere."

Mr. Dyson denies that Russia was to blame for the Chinese disturbances.

"Those who favor all this show of force," he wrote, "and those who have neglected revising the unequal treaties, pointed at the well known and easily seen activities of Red Russia. But they miss the mark widely when they give Russia the credit for all this. Unless the Chinese had been stung into action by the long drawn-out exploitation from the West, Russia would have had no chance to get in her hand against Great Britain. . . . .

"But it is hard to get the government officials to see it that way. Many missionaries, also, are willing to stand by the guns and the treaties. Well, you see where that policy has brought us to.

"We don't know when we shall get back to work," the letter continues. "All of us are here in Shanghai, waiting for things to clear up. At Soochow we have no fears of anyone there; but are uncertain what the American government might do, in case anything did happen. We feel it would be fatal to be the occasion of another 'incident.'

"With no money above bare necessities, under such high prices, we have no option but to sit here in Shanghai—a veritable armed camp. To go to Japan, Korea or Manila is utterly impossible financially. But we are hoping against hope to get back to Soochow soon, so as to help in the work there. . . . .

"We could tell you some long and interesting stories about evacuation and the inconveniences and losses entailed. Those things, however, are of the moment only, and may be left to the imagination. I am anxious for all our friends to help in this much deeper problem of getting at the cause of all this—insofar as it concerns us foreigners. . . . .

"I hope you are able to stimulate the prospective history teachers under your care to go out to their schools with a broad vision of what America could do, if she would dare to be idealistic, and less opportunistic, in all her international relations."

"Our people," Professor Dyson urged, "ought to disillusion themselves about China, and face the facts of history. We should be more sympathetic with them then, and recognize our faults in the case, too."

SALVI TO GIVE HARP CONCERT

NOTED ARTIST WILL PLAY HERE NEXT WEEK.

A CITIZEN OF U. S.

Born In Italy, He Came to America in 1913.—Instrument One of Most Difficult.

Alberto Salvi, considered the world's greatest concert harpist, will play a recital in the auditorium at the State Teachers College Wednesday evening of next week.

Salvi is recognized, not only by his own managers, but by competitive managers as well, as the outstanding solo harpist on the American concert platform. He was born thirty years ago in Venice, Italy, and all the magic, the charm, the beauty and the passion of that poetic city are said to find expression in his playing.

Salvi's father was a celebrated harp maker, and the child grew up in the shadowy reaches of the elder Salvi's shop. The boy early evidenced a love for the instrument. His father, perceiving the affection, built him a minature harp, and when Salvi was only 7 years old he was mastering the early technique of the instrument.

At 13, he won the Royal Scholarship of the Naples Royal Conservatory. This insured his study at the Naples Royal Conservatory for eight years, but Salvi finished the course, "both of the practice and theory of music," in five years.

Salvi's public career in Italy was successful, but he saw in the United States a land of musical youth and ambition. In 1913 he came to this country and became a naturalized citizen in 1921.

On his arrival here, he obtained a position with a theater orchestra in Chicago, but his unusual talent soon was discovered and he was engaged as a concert artist. Since that time, Salvi has played more than 400 recitals without assisting artists, an outstanding record.

Harp A Difficult Instrument.

The harp has always been celebrated, from the very earliest days of history, as an instrument of sublime beauty. "As gentle as a harp," is one of the favorite poetic expressions which has found it way through literature, and possibly for that reason the instrument is looked upon as one that is easy to play. As a matter of fact, the harp is one of the most difficult instruments to manage even passably well, and to play it with a real depth of emotion requires genius.

"To begin with, the harp is a large, unwieldy instrument," Salvi explains. "It has an enormously long keyboard; my own instrument has ten more notes than a piano and it must be played only with the tips of the fingers. There are seven pedals for the foot to manage and the degree of physical dexterity required makes the technique of the piano seem like child's play by comparison."

It has often been said of Salvi that he makes his instrument sound like an orchestra, so varied and colorful are the notes which he produces. "He can play a pianissimo like a silver thread running through a maze of delicate lace and a moment later, he can pluck a thundering tumultuous chord from the strings," said one critic.

Too Often In Background.

Those lovers of harp music who were so distressed to see the harpist with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, which was here a few years ago, and the harpist with the Kansas City Little Symphony, which was here last winter, sit idly awaiting their turn to touch their instruments a few times during the entire program, will have an opportunity to enjoy themselves thoroughly Wednesday evening. The tickets and reserved seats will be on sale at Kuehs Brothers store Monday.

What Nodaway County Churches Are Doing

THE EVOLUTION OF A CHRISTIAN

Comment on the Uniform International Sunday School Lesson for June 26, 1927.

Review Lesson.
Wm. Southern, Jr.

Neither saints nor criminals are made over night.

It takes a long time to make a saint out of the very best material to be found on this earth.

I believe that some people are born Christians. These do not sow wild oats and have no crops of that kind to reap. Yet it takes many years fashioning at the hands of the Master to make a real saint out of even one of these.

Think then what a job the Master has when he attempts to make a saint out of an ordinary half baked, or hard boiled individual, like you and me. The job seems impossible to us and when we see it done in some cases we call it a miracle. And it is a miracle.

This was the kind of miracle we read about when we follow the life of Simon Peter. Peter was a hard citizen. He made his living under hard circumstances, associated with a rough-neck crowd, fought his way in the markets where he brought his fish for sale. Peter was rough and ready, impulsive and fickle, well meaning, quick in wrath and just as quick to be sorry for what he had done. His fists were hard and ready and oaths came easily from his lips.

Yet the Lord took Peter and made him the Rock. Today his name stands enshrined in the greatest Cathedral in the world, the Patron Saint of the largest body in organized Christianity.

It is quite interesting to study how this miracle was accomplished. The story is told in the four gospels and in the Acts and continued in the letters which Peter has left us.

Peter was a Jew, but I doubt if he worked at it much. His was a nature which abhorred hypocrisy and resented authority which clashed with his ideas of liberty. I think Peter must have been in full sympathy with the great fight made by the Maccabee brothers and then when he saw the Roman soldiers, then masters of Palestine, march by, he cursed them. First he became interested in John the Baptist and went to hear him preach. He liked John who was himself a rough and ready and earnest man Peter sized John up as one who was honest in what he said.

Then one day Peter's brother told him that the Messiah had come. Peter dropped everything and had a long talk with Jesus. He was not particularly attracted at first, but the wizardry of His voice, the calmness of His eye and the Love which looked out upon Peter, drew that young man irresistibly. So it happened that when Jesus invited Peter to join him Peter dropped everything he had in hand and followed. Peter became a Christian.

Then began the evolution of a Christian. I am not using this word to arouse controversy but in its meaning. A lot of people see red whenever the word evolution is used, but it is a perfectly good word and does not mean that man was once a monkey or that the human race jumped across a chasm that has never been crossed from one species of life to another.

Jesus began by the slow process of evolution to make a saint out of a sinner. He had a hard time of it, we are given little illustrations all through the story of the struggle. Peter had his moments of exaltation and his moments of despair. One day he was in the clouds on the mount of transfiguration, the next in the dust of denial. Early in his career he started to walk across the waves of the sea in full faith, lost his faith whe he felt the wind and saw the waves and sank with a cry for help.

Peter was still a private in the rear ranks when Jesus died. He became a leader only after he had plumbed the depths of despair at his own act of denial. He knew that Jesus had forgiven him when his Master looked at him so sorrowfully as He was led down the stone starway, wearing the stripes and bleeding.

In Rome there is a stairway of twenty-eight steps said to have been brought from Jerusalem centuries ago and to be the very steps down which Jesus walked when he looked his forgiveness to the man whom it transformed.

Peter's education and evolution had progressed rapidly when he ran to the tomb and saw that the body of his Lord was no longer there. It dawned on him as it did on John that Jesus had risen from the dead and then they began to understand for the first time the meaning of many things He had said to them in His lifetime.

Then came the interview by the lake about a little camp fire and Jesus left them to carry on the work which he had begun. It was a great responsibility. They had no written instructions. Jesus had left no books. He left only his disciples and one of them was Peter. They did not fail him.

Look how Peter, the denier to save his own skin, stood boldly before the rulers and proclaimed to their faces that they were murderers. Look at him approaching the Gate Beautiful at the hour of prayer healing in Christ's name, the lame man. Look at him in prison when his chains fell from him and the doors opened.

In reviewing the life and the evolution of Peter, I think the greatest victory he ever won was when he became convinced that Gentiles had souls and that Christianity was for the despised Samaritan and the impossible Gentile as well as the Jew.

Right here let me stick a pin. We of this day have not evoluted far enough toward sainthood to do this thing. We are not even willing to believe that Christianity is for certain brands of Christians we may not like. We are willing to call names and to shut the doors on men and women who do not believe as we do.

The evolution of sinners into saints is taking place all about us. The story of Peter should answer the man who does not joint the church "because he is not good enough." Peter was not good enough. He was a very poor member and very fickle. Yet God made of Peter a Christian so faithful and so fine that we enshrine him as a saint.

The story of Peter ought to be an inspiration to all men and women who want to do right and to serve righteousness yet who feel unworthy and know that the devil is working on them.

Peter was a very human, everyday man. If God could make a Christian out of Peter, I have hope for myself.

Dewar Will Present Illustrated Sermons

"Peace, Perfect Peace!" Is Subject Chosen for Morning Service; Ordination Service.

Beginning Sunday night at 8 o'clock the Rev. W. N. Dewar of the First Presbyterian Church will give a series of six illustrated sermons on "Great Crises in the Life of Jesus."

The titles of the sermons are as follows:

"In The Wilderness With His Life Problem."

"In Conflict With Religious Customs"

"On The Hillside With The Common People."

"In Wanderings With The Twelve."

"In Gethsemane Alone With God."

"The Greatest Question In The World."

"Each sermon," the minister announces "will be illustrated by beautifully hand colored slides, each an artistic gem. They are splendid reproductions of the best work of the world's master artists—Tissot, Hoffman Copping and others. The series practically visualizes the major part of the marvelous life of Jesus. The six sermons are so compact and vital in the material and slides used that they constitute a liberal education and provide a new and helpful viewpoint with respect to the earthly life of Carist.

"The series is splendidly adapted to the college student, and the church extends a hearty invitation."

Sunday School will be held at 9:30 o'clock and morning worship at 10:45 o'clock. The sermon will be "Peace! Perfect Peace!"

The text of the sermon is found in John 14:27. At the morning service the Lord's Supper will be celebrated, new members received into fellowship, and elders and deacons-elect ordained. Parents desiring baptism for their children should notify the minister prior to the morning service.

All services are open to the public. Strangers are cordially invited.

Christian Churches Will Take Offering

Sunday Is Last Opportunity to Contribute to Missionary and Benevolent Budget for Year.

Next Sunday is the last opportunity the Christian churches of Nodaway County have to take an offering or in some way arrange for the missionary and benevolent budget for this year. Most churches have not met their apportionment, and some have sent nothing so far for this very important work. It must be in the St. Louis office before midnight, June 30, in order to be counted in this year's work, and the books close for the year at that time. At a meeting of the officers of County organization Thursday night in Maryville, it was decided to make an effort to get in touch with the churches. If your church has not already attended to this important matter, please see that someone is looking after it, pastors are advised. If anyone wishes to make an individual gift, it may be sent direct to the United Christian Missionary Society, 425 De Baliviere ave., St. Louis, Mo. Designate to what church the offering should be credited. This offering is for the following causes: Home Missions, Foreign Missions Ministerial Relief, Church Relief, Church Extension, Orphans Homes and Homes for the Aged.

Money for Missouri missions should be sent to C. C. Garrigues, 505 R. A. Long Building, Kansas City, Mo.

Goldie Prather and Bernice Cox of Parnell were Maryville visitors today.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH
Pickering

We had a fine morning service last Sunday in every way, yet there is plenty of room for more. Come to Sunday School next Sunday, remain for the sermon, then at night go to the Evangelistic meeting in the tent. Bro. Hankins is bringing some very vital messages, and everyone ought to avail themselves of the opportunity to hear him. It is high time that people who call themselves Christian should learn to unite forces as much as possible with all others who call themselves Christian in order that as many as possible might be won to Christ. Let us attend these meetings as much as possible.

There will be no night service in the Christian Church while these meetings are in progress.

DRAMATIC EVENTS IN BIBLE HISTORY : : By Harlowe R. Hoyt and Walter Scott

The Death of Peter

The Bible does not record the death of Peter. However, tradition relates that he was in Rome when the Emperor Nero cruelly persecuted the Christians.
At the solicitation of his followers, Peter fled the city to save his life. But he had not gone far before he beheld the vision of Jesus coming toward him.
"Lord, where goest Thou?" Peter asked. "To be crucified again in thy stead," Jesus replied. "I go to obey Thy command," Peter answered. And he returned to Rome.
In Rome, the story ends, Peter was arrested and condemned to die. He was crucified on Mount Janiculum—head downward, at his request, since he deemed himself unworthy to be crucified as was his Lord.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

To the queer little South American town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil, a town fringed by dark, forbidding jungle, comes an elderly American, LINCOLN NUNNALLY, a chemist.

Nunnally, registers at the ramshackle hotel and steps out on the balcony. A beautiful young girl drives past in a chaise, accompanied by a negro woman and a small child. To the American's amazement, she waves to him, then drives on. He sees two sinister looking men watch the girl, exchange mysterious signals, then follow her.

Another surprise is in store for him. In the barber shop, the barber, a strange dark man with an Oriental cast to his eyes, speaks to him. He then recognizes the barber as VILAKA WEST, known to him as VILAK, a fellow American and former chemistry pupil. He asks Vilak what he is doing in Porto Verde. To his amazement, Vilak says he has sent for him, that he and his cousin, who was the young lady Nunnally had seen from the balcony, owned the Porto Verde Development Co., and were in need of some assistance in getting at the root of a mystery that had already cost several lives and threatened their own.

The barber business, Vilak explains, serves to conceal his real activities. In the midst of his explanations, word reaches him that another man, one of his cousin's foremen, had been murdered.

The barber business, Vilak explains serves to conceal his real activities. In the midst of his explanation, word reaches him that another man has been murdered, and he and Nunnally hasten to the spot where the victim, TONY BARBETTA, one of his cousin's foremen, lies on the ground, still alive.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER 4

Vilak drew a pin from the lapel of his coat and touched the point to Barbetta's arm. The flesh did not twitch as ordinary living flesh would have responded to the experiment, but the little Italian's eyes showed that he felt the pain.

"This is certainly unusual," Vilak whispered to his companion. "I can't conceive of anything which could possibly have put him onto such a state. His muscles are completely paralyzed, yet his sensations of pain aren't affected in the slightest." His blue eyes half closed and the closing accentuated their distinct Chinese cast. He stood thus a moment, lost in thought, then abruptly knelt beside the body. "I think I may have it," he whispered. "Take hold of his arm there. We'll try artificial respiration.

Nunnally leaned to obey. As he did so a step sounded near him. Prentiss, the archeologist, came forward from the bushes where he had been watching, the curious mark on his forehead sullenly aglow. "You can't save him," he mumbled. "No power on earth can save him."

Vilak glanced up, peered at him an instant, then with Nunnally began alternately lifting Barbetta's arms above his head and pressing them against his chest. There was a slight movement as of restored breathing at the Italian's lips; the pain evident in his eyes lessened. For ten minutes the two friends labored vigorously; then one of Barbetta's legs jerked feebly.

"I think we've won,' Vilak murmured.

Five minutes later Barbetta was staggering to his feet. With Latin passion he shook his fist at the handcuffed Englishman who had watched him rise as stolidly as he had watched him lie outstretched. Then he turned to those around him and recognized Vilak. "I tell you, Meester Riggs," he burst out passionately. "Then you tell Miss Marberry. Limey he badda man. He try to keel her like he keel me. You will tell her he try to keel her? You will tell? You will tell?" He gasped violently for breath.

Vilak nodded. "I'll tell her, Tony," he said soothingly. "Don't you worry. And he hasn't killed you. You're all right now. You're not going to die. You're going to live a long time. You'll take a long rest. Then go back to Italy maybe and see your mother and father. Tell me what happened?"

The Italian shivered and clutched Vilak's arm for support. "I tell you. Sure I tell you. I near my house. In bushes. You know my house. Pretty house. Little red roof. Like house in Italy. Looking for snakes who steal my little chickens. Then I see a man creeping through bushes. I wait. He comes closer. I see him. It is Limey. Limey the badda, the evil Limey that I hate. In his hand is something. I think he come to do me harm. I want him far, oh far from my little house with the red roof. He badda man, badda Englishman. I follow through the bushes. And then I see Miss Marberry in the road driving in her cart. It is she he follows. And then I have great fear for her, for the last days have I heard him talk much against her. Evil talk. Because last week she have make me head foreman and not him. He climbs a tree to a limb where the leaves will hide him. He holds his knife. But I, Tony, I see his plan. When the carriage will pass under the tree, he will jump down upon it and kill her."

He went on feverishly. "I cross to the road where it is not so bushy, where I can run faster and warn her. I run. I cry out. 'Run Miss Marberry! Run! Fast!' She hear. She drives fast. Too fast for him to fall upon her. She is gone. Limey jumps from the tree to the ground. He runs after me. 'What you mean by screaming like that, you dago blighter?' He shout. 'What you mean? What you mean?' I not dago blighter. Good Italian. Good American. Not—" His voice suddenly dropped to a whisper. His face resumed its gray pallor. His grip on Vilak's arm became weaker than a child's. "He killa me," he murmured. "He killa me. An' he killa Miss Marberry like he killa me. Tell her, tell. . ." He pitched forward and fell to the ground.

Vilak touched his wrist. "Dead," he pronounced laconically.

The gendarme looked in a sort of stupid awe at the motionless body, then began to move off with his prisoner. The Englishman turned to the barber. "It's a damn dago blighter's dope dream," he grumbled. "A dope dream. You just remember that if they call on you to testify. You remember that and I'll make it all right with you. See? All he says about my killin' him is true. I killed the blighter all right. But it was in self defense. He was wavin' a knife at me. Anybody'd kill if someone was wavin' a knife at him. Bloody well ought to. Will you remember?" His lips curved in an expression between a threat and a sneer.

The barber smiled affably. "Sure thing. I'll remember. Then you weren't in the bushes over near his house the way he said you were?"

"Nowhere near his bloody house. And haven't seen Miss Marberry all afternoon. I was just walkin' along the road, comin' back from town, when he comes up to me and begins gettin' bloody narsty about that money I won from him playin' cards. You know all about that like every blighter in town does, so I says to him we'll settle the bloody thing right now, we will. We comes over here where we knows there won't be no bloomin' fools to interfere and begin fightin. It was goin' all right, fair fightin,' fair sport, an' I was beatin' the blighter when he outs with his knife an comes wavin' it at me. So I picks up that club bloody quick and hits him with it."

He turned and glowered at the black policeman at his side. "An' I wouldn't be sorry I done it either if I didn't have to stay in one of their narsty jails. Oh, it's a bloody life. Don't you forget when they bring you to court that all he said about me and Miss Marberry is lies."

The policeman and his prisoner began to move off toward the town. The grimy-linened Prentiss, who had moved back a few yards from the circle of onlookers, stepped into their path. The marks on his forehead twitched vividly again as he glanced, first at the rainbow-hued gendarme than at the scowling captive. His lips moved slightly; he seemed about to speak.

"What ees it you would say?" the policeman grunted.

The question seemed to bring Prentiss to a decision. He mumbled something to himself, spat scornfully upon the ground, shrugged his shoulders and again taking hold of his straw basket, which Vilak saw was filled with cans of condensed milk, walked briskly away. A wide lane quickly opened in the crowd of motley half-breeds to let him pass, while two or three of the bolder muttered a curse and after he had disappeared drew knives across their throats in ugly, dramatic portrayal of what they would do if they dared.

Vilak and Nunnally slowly retraced their steps to the town. For a while they walked in silence. Then with an effort the chemist threw off the gloom which had enveloped him, and began searching once more for his matches, which had again eluded him. "Er. . . Porto Verde. . .er. . .frightens me," he said. "I. . .er. . .confess I'm getting old. Ten years ago, I would have been enthusiastic. . .enthusiastic at the opportunity of witnessing the. . .er. . . scientific aspects of a death like that one. But this was not pleasant." He grew thoughtful. "Could there be any . . .er. . .connection between the two men I saw making. . .er. . .signals and this. . .er. . .tragedy?"

"I don't know, mon cher."

"Your. . .er. . .cousin will surely leave Porto Verde now, will she not? After such a deliberate. . .er. . .attack upon her life?"

"I'm afraid you don't know my cousin. I'll warn her again, but it will be simply wasted energy. She'll be all the keener to stay and find out what's at the bottom of it."

"Times have. . .er. . .changed. In my day a woman was a. . .er. . .hussey if she did not faint at the sight of a scratched. . .er. . .fingerYes, faint. But even your. . .er. . .modern cousin would have been affected. . .er . . .affected had she seen poor Barbetta. Have you any idea yet as to the cause of that extraordinary. . .er . . .paralysis?"

Vilak withdrew from his pocket a thin bronze cigaret case, a bit of expert Oriental workmanship fashioned in the form of a Chinese dragon. He pressed it. It snapped open, exposing a row of brown cigarets. "Stop looking for those matches and lace and lavender cigarets of yours, and try one of these favorites of mine," he invited. "They're good for old men's nerves. Cheer you up. A little discovery I made down in the Malay Peninsula on my last trip east. I make them out of perique and the ground-up leaf of the eucalyptus. May find them a little bitter. But they're powerful as opium. Maybe they'll give you the answer to your question about the paralysis. I haven't it. In fact my ideas on the entire subject of Tony's death are notably vague and scanty. Except that I'm quite positive that Limey Potts did not kill him!"

(To Be Continued).

If Limey Potts did not kill Barbetta, who did? In the next chapter a mysterious investigation gets under way.

Pickering

(O. G. Null).

C. G. McMillen, who underwent an operation for appeadicitis at St. Francis Hospital about three weeks ago, returned home last Friday and is recovering in a very satisfactory way. He was able to be down town a couple of hours Thursday forenoon.

Irvin Lawson of Camas, Wash., who accompanied the body of his mother, the late Mrs. M. A. Lawson here for burial week before last, and who has visited relatives here, left the first of the week for his home.

Mrs. O. C. Wells and daughter, Gwendolyn, of Stapleton, Neb., who came here to attend the funeral of Mrs. Lawson, mother of the former left for their home Thursday after visiting with relatives in Harmony neighborhood and at this place for the past two weeks.

Mrs. Jas. G. Buchanan and daughter, Doris Jane, of Osawatomie, Kan., arrived here last Saturday evening for a visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Null, parents of the former and with other relatives in this vicinity.

Mrs. A. W. Grotk and three daughters and Miss Helen Carlson all of West Union, Iowa, are visiting this week at the home of Mrs. Groth's mother, Mrs. Amelia Sapp and her brother, Edwin Sapp, in Mozingo Valley neighborhood.

H. H. Wagner and S. C. Lock left the first of the week for Brighton, Colo., where they will visit the family of Everett Wagner, brother of the former, who is a former Pickering resident, but who went to Colorado several years since.

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Wray of Bloomdale neighborhood entertained at dinner last Sunday. Their guests were Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Marquis and children, George and Martha May of Independence, Mo.; Miss May Marquis and Miss Mary Ellen Clegg of Kansas City; Mr. and Mrs. George Hantze and son, Harlan, of Bloomfield neighborhood; Miss Emma Hogue, Albany, Mo., and Miss Evelyn Ashford of Pickering. G. C. Marquis is a cousin of Mrs. Wray. Mr. Marquis is grand commander of the Knights of Templar of Missouri, and with his family were on their way to Spirit Lake, Iowa, where they were to be guests of the Knights Templar of Iowa, who were in session there this week. Miss Mary Marquis is also a cousin and Miss Clegg a niece of Mrs. Wray.

C. G. Swinford, jr. and Chas. Sadler left last Sunday morning for Joplin, Mo., expecting to spend a few days there visiting former friends of Mr. Swinford, who used to live in that city. However, as it had rained there Saturday and Sunday and was still raining Monday and as neither of them had taken their raincoats or hip boots with them, they grew homesick at once and started for home Monday afternoon arriving here Tuesday evening. They reported the highway flooded in many places especially near Lamar, Mo., as they returned home.

A deal was consummated this week in which C. G. McMillen traded the remnant of the stock of goods which he recently purchased of Henry Westfall, to R. E. Roberts of Nodaway, Ia., for a residence property in Hopkins. Mr. Roberts came with a truck on Thursday and moved the goods to Nodaway, Ia., where he is engaged in merchandising.

Vern Fakes and Howard Null shipped a car of steers and heifers of their own feeding to St. Joseph on Monday and went down Tuesday to see them sold. Their cattle were well finished and brought satisfactory prices. Loren Hackett shipped a load of hogs of his own raising and the Farmers Exchange shipped a load of hogs also on Monday.

The weather for the past week has been favorable for field work and corn planting was practically completed last week. A few fields however, have been replated this week. Cultivation of the corn is in progress and most fields are being cleaned in good shape. Corn has made a good growth during the past few days, but the oats on ground that is inclined to be spouty is dying and will not amount to anything. Oats on drier ground is growing but will be very late in heading. Wheat is generally thin and of small acreage.

TWO HOMES MADE HAPPY

By Women Who Used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I think it is the most wonderful medicine I ever tried," is the statement made by Mrs. Goldie Shoup of St. Joseph, Illinois. She declares that after taking the Compound she is in better health than before.

Mrs. J. Storms of 29 Lane Street, Paterson, N. J., writes: "I can not speak too highly of your medicine and I recommend it to all my friends."

These statements were taken from two enthusiastic letters which tell of the help that has been received from using the Vegetable Compound. Both Mrs. Shoup and Mrs. Storms were in a run-down condition which caused hem much unhappiness. When women are suffering from lack of strength and from weakness, their own life and that of their family is affected. When they feel well and strong and are able to do their housework easily, happy homes are the result.

Thousands of testimonial letters have been received from women in different walks of life, stating that the Compound has helped them.

Third Term Limited May Yet Be Wrecked

While the Track Seems Clear, Slight Obstacle May Frighter Engineer Coolidge.

By RODNEY DUTCHER.
NEA Service Writer.

Washington, June 24.—The Republican railroad's Third Term Limited is tearing along the tracks with Calvin Coolidge in the cab.

Most folks seem to think that it will arrive at its destination on time, but there's curves in them thar mountains an one of these days, around the bend, the engineer is likely to sight a large rock right plop across the ties.

This engineer is too cautious a veteran to try to smash through that thar rock, and it may be that the train will come to a dead stop, in which case most of the passengers may be expected to get out, run to the next station and catch another.

All of which is contrary to the present popular belief, but not at all contrary to the possibilities or, according to confidential advices from one or two high grade politicians of the party, even contrary to likelihood.

Most of the Republican politicians have announced publicly that they would support Mr. Coolidge for another term. And so they will if they have to. But one is advised on excellent authority that the majority of them would jump fast, if they see any chance of the Third Term Limited being wrecked.

These wise gentlemen are seldom willing to admit this, even in confidence. But the one or two exceptions mentioned, the only ones your correspondent has been able to persuade to doff their false faces for a moment, express the belief that there will be a real fight at the convention.

Of course, in the light of the present situation, this at first sounds like somebody's wild dream. But closer scrutiny suggests that there may be something in it.

One thing which seems generally agreed to is that Mr. Coolidge will not try to obtain renomination if he has to fight for it. Therefore, the present conviction that he will not be renominated is based on the thought that no one is going to make him fight. By the same reasoning, then, it can be said that anyone who gives Coolidge a fight can expect to see the President withdraw.

Whether this will hold good is no certainty, of course. But you can bet your Aunt Kate's diamond-studded side comb that there are a dozen or more victims of the presidential hornet who will quickly seize the opportunity if they feel Mr. Coolidge can be scared away by merely jumping in front of him and shouting "Boo!"

Brewers Take Part in Seven Hold-ups

Confess To Robbing St. Joseph Oil Stations—Held Up Welling Filling Station Here.

Further confessions of Ivan and Paul Brewer, cousins, have revealed that besides robbing the Welling Filling station here they had participated in seven holdups in St. Joseph since the middle of March, and had stolen two automobiles. They are being held in the Atchison County jail at Rock Port, pending a trial for automobile theft.

Ivan Brewer at first gave out his name as "Emmons," according to the information received here by Sheriff L. B. Campbell.

The amounts stolen from the seven St. Joseph filling stations varied from $34 to $140. Confessions of the holdups was made to John T. Duncan, St. Joseph chief of detectives, after B. E. Richie, an attendant at the Standard Oil Company's station, identified both the cousins as the youths who held him up June 3.

The St. Joseph Gazette today said: "Whether the cousins will be brought to St. Joseph for trial before they are tried in Atchison county, will be decided by the prosecutor of that county."

Ivan, or Emmons Brewer, is the bandit who was identified by L. B. Welling as the one who held up him and escaped with $10 last Friday night.

Work of Bible School on Display in Stores

Summer Classes Near Close.—Displays placed in Price and Hotchkin Show Windows.

The Daily Vacation Bible School is about to bring its season's work to a close, and in order that the public may see the results of the work done this year, the faculty and students today arranged displays of their work up town.

The kindergarten department, under the direction of Miss Hilda Denny, and the primary department, under the direction of Miss Anna Mae Holt, have a display in the window of the Price Furniture co. It consists of class-work, sand-table work and some booklets of work done in class.

A display in D. E. Hotchkin's window is of the work done in the intermediate and junior divisions, under the direction of Mrs. Leonard Bosch and Mrs. Lewis White. The work is merely a sample of articles made, and includes regular class work, wood-work done by the boys, and articles which the girls have made to give to the Red Cross. The school will close next Thursday.

Mrs. S. S. Wolcott Sends News Home

Mrs. S. S. Wolcott, 4320 Bell street, Kansas City, writes that the Wolcott family has sold its home on Terrace and is now living at the Bell street address.

Edith Wolcott, who formerly was employed with the People's Trust Company, is now with the Commerce Trust Company.

Esther May Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Miller, was graduated from high school this year and is a fine typist. She has won several prizes in stenography and her team of three took several "firsts" in Columbia, in May.

John Dean, formerly of Quitman, who lives in Kansas City, operates an oil station. Mrs. Wolcott reports that Mrs. Dean and the baby daughter are 'doing fine.''

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Case of Union, Wash., are guests at the home of the former's sister, Mrs. D. R. Baker, on West Third street. The visitors, who arrived yesterday, drove through from Washington in eight days. They will visit relatives at Mound City, St. Joseph and Lincoln, Neb., returning to Washington in August.

NO HURRY TO END 'STRIKE'

NEGOTIATIONS WITH KANSAS PRISONERS GO SLOWLY.

MUST COME UP FIRST

Little Consideration to Be Given Ten Demands Until Mine Is Quitted.

Lansing, Kan., June 24.—Officials of the Kansas State penitentiary are in no hurry to complete negotiations with the prisoners who mutinied Tuesday and barricaded themselves in a mine of the institution, it was indicated today.

Negotiations with the prisoners proceeded in a leisurely manner by telephone as the seventy-first hour of the self-incarceration passed. The prisoners have presented ten demands to officers for consideration.

The spokesmen for the men advised Warden Mackey to take plenty of time in considering the demands, though nothing was said as to what would happen if the demands were refused outright.

It is believed the men are prepared for a protracted stay in their underground stronghold from the assured manner of the spokesman. However, it was indicated little consideration would be given the requests until the men come to the surface.

The ten demands covered many alleged grievances of the prisoners, chiefly the pardon methods. The resignation of the prison steward was asked among other things.

Graduate Here to Return to the East

After receiving an eastern education, Morris F. Snierson, Webster Grove, N. H., has come west to get ideas here. Mr. Snierson took his B. A. degree from the University of New Hampshire, but he wanted to teach commerce and he wanted to experience life in the "west," so he came to Maryville and enrolled in the State Teachers College here last fall. He received his B. S. Degree in Education from the College this spring. Word has been received here that Mr. Snierson has accepted a position as teacher of commercial arithmetic at a very good salary in the Roosevelt Junior High School at New Brunswick, N. J., for next year.

This and That

Dr. Vilas Martin, who planned to go to Iowa City to meet his son, Forrest, did not go. Yesterday the Democrat-Forum stated that Dr. Martin had gone. "Oh, well, it was a psychological vacation anyway," the physician declared today.

The new Lindbergh stamps are here. They arrived at the Maryville postoffice Wednesday and they are long, thin and dark blue. They say, "United States Postage. Lindbergh air mail." A map showing New York and Paris, with a plane midway between, makes up the "picture" on the stamp. Spirit of St. Louis is written on the plane.

A policeman was walking his beat in a residential district when a badly battered house-to-house salesman rushed up to him.

"Say officer," he panted, pointing to a red-headed iceman, who had just climbed on his wagon, "I want that man arrested. Just look what he did to me!"

Stalking majestically into the street, the policeman waved the icewagon to a halt, and demanded, "Did you hit this man?"

"Oi did," was the shameless reply.

"What for?"

"Alienation av affections," replied the iceman. "He sold Bridget Nolan's missus wan av thim electric iceboxes."

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, June 24.—Heavy selling induced by fine weather for the harvest in the Southwest, together with easier foreign markets and a negligible export demand, forced wheat prices sharply lower today. The cash market was ½ to 1 cent lower.

Corn, like wheat, was under heavy pressure early on the better weather over the belt, and prices dropped sharply. The cash market was 1 to 1½ cents lower.

Although oats were very dull, prices sold off sharply early in sympathy with other grains. The cash market was 1 to 2 cents lower.

Provisions were lower.

COMETS BACK TO HOME LOT

MARYVILLE TO PLAY STANBERRY HERE SUNDAY.

TOUR IS COMPLETED

Team Not Disheartened Despite Fact That Only One Victory Was Achieved.

Having made a tour of the league since Decoration Day, playing Hopkins, King City and Bethany, and being rained out at Albany, the Maryville Comets have returned for a game on the home grounds Sunday at the fair-grounds. The swing around the greater part of the circuit did not prove so profitable as anticipated, the Comets winning only over Bethany.

The local ball players are not disheartened, however, and feel that their defeats can be evened by closer co-operation in the field. There was some talk today about a change in the line-up, but whether it will be effective by Sunday was uncertain.

The Comets will be playing the Northwest Missouri League leaders, who have a perfect percentage with seven victories and no defeats.

Stanberry has promised that a large delegation will accompany the team here for its initial appearance this season on the Comets' home grounds. Claire Stockton, manager of the Stanberry Red Sox, announced that thirteen players will make the trip here.

Manager Brennan today gave out a tentative lineup, with probabilities that it will be altered by the time the Comets take the field.

The probable starting lineup follows:

Maryville		Stanberry
Lewis or Arrington	p	Bosch
T. Tobin	c	Dix
Brennan	1b	Sullivan
Caywood	2b	Akey
T. Lewis	3b	T. Mulholland
P. Tobin	ss	Laughlin
Search	lf	P. Mulholland
Arthur	cf	Miller
Schultz	rf	Turnipseed

Stanberry utility players: W. and H. Besinger, Wiederholt, fielders; Boner, pitcher.

7 Matches Played in Golf Tournament

Four Players Go Into Second Round in Class A and Three in Class B.

Four first-round matches in class A and three in class B had been played this morning in the Maryville Country Club tournament which is to be completed July 4.

Although the class A flight was conceded to be a "place-your-money-on-any-man" affair, the results were surprising to some of the dopesters.

Ed V. Condon went into the second round by defeating R. C. Seal, one up; O. K. Bovard, eliminated J. C. McDonnell 3 up and 2; O. M. Watkins defeated Ed Dale, always a contender for honors, 3 up and 2; and Paul Jones turned back Martin Lewis, jr., 3 up and 2.

In class B, Roy Curfman defeated C. F. Remus 3 up and 2; Bert Null eliminated Ray Hull 2 up, and the Rev. W. N. Dewar defeated Ralph Berger one up. No class C matches had been played.

Sniper Goes to the Chair

Little is known of the strange murderer save he was born near Ackley, Ia., in 1880, and lived there until he was 16 years old. After that he became a "drifter" and worked on many farms throughout southwestern Iowa.

In recent years he spent most of his time in Omaha and Sioux City, Ia. He was paroled from the Iowa State Prison in 1920, police say, under the name of Louis Clark.

Carter always refused to divulge information about his parents, and it is believed neither Carter nor Clark is his true name.

Change No. 18 Survey West of Burlington

New Crossing Over Wabash Tracks Decided Upon By Engineer Sack And Railway Engineers.

Location of state highway No. 18, over the Wabash and Burlington railroads tracks, west of Burlington Junction, has been settled, the Burlington Junction Post stated yesterday.

N. R. Sack, divisional engineer of the highway commission at St. Joseph, and engineers for both railroads in a conference at Burlington Junction Wednesday decided to change the survey so that the highway will cross the Wabash track about 1,000 feet west of the joint Wabash and C. B. & Q. passenger station.

This crossing is approximately 500 feet east of the first survey, and the change will eliminate necessity of the highway taking property on which homes are now located. Instead of cutting through land owned by five persons, between the Wabash and Burlington tracks, the highway will angle across the land of only two property owners.

Should the highway follow Main street, it would turn more sharply to the south after crossing the Burlington tracks, and bring the two railway crossings, within about 1,100 feet of each other.

As now proposed the Wabash crossing would be about a quarter of a block west of First street in Cleveland, the west suburb of Burlington Junction. The Post said the new survey would be made immediately.

Many Horses Being Killed for Meat

Hind Quarters for French People, Front Quarters for Dogs In England.

Hersh Lewis, superintendent of the Burlington stock yards at Creston, was a caller at the Journal office last Monday and in speaking of the different kinds of stock going through the yards remarked about the great number of western horses that are being shipped to Rockford, Ill., where they are slaughtered under government inspection.

The hind quarters are pickled and shipped to France to be used by the people of that country for meat.

The front quarters are canned and shipped to England where it is used by the English for dog meat.

The rest of the carcass is made into fertilizer.

The horses are bought on the plains for little or nothing, the price ranging from one to five dollars per head, but it is a good thing for the western horsemen as they are getting rid of a lot of inbred and undesirable horses, to be replaced later with more desirable ones.—Hopkins Journal.

Vodka Sale Stopped in Arctic Ice Field

Moscow, June 24.—The ice-fields of Arctic Russia have gone "dry." Sale of vodka and other alcoholic drinks has been forbidden in the northern reaches of the Turukhansk district, because the natives, who live by trapping wild animals, were trading their most valuable furs for a bottle or two of fire water. Agents were exploiting the natives and the Soviet government has put a stop to their activity.
